Course overview

Being able to positively impact negotiations both with clients and colleagues will decide your level of success as a lawyer. In today's fast-paced legal and commercial environments, technical expertise alone is not enough.

Lawyers must also excel at leadership, persuasion and influencing clients and colleagues, persuading across cultures and functions and negotiating with strategic intent. This highly practical and immersive course equips legal professionals with the essential behavioural, communication and negotiation tools to lead with impact, foster trust and deliver measurable outcomes.

During this two-day professional and personal development workshop you'll explore your personal influencing style, master techniques for building trust in complex relationships, and learn how to tailor your approach for diverse audiences - from boardrooms to multi-national stakeholders. You'll dive deep into advanced negotiation frameworks, cultural agility, team dynamics and how to exert influence even when you lack formal authority.

This course offers a unique opportunity to focus on developing proven advanced influencing, persuading and negotiation skills to enhance your ability to make an impact, improve visibility and influence both clients and colleagues to manage legal risk and achieve business goals.

This course will help you to understand that this is not just a matter of reasons and arguments, but of making sure you are fully aware of your behaviour, your communication style and the impact they have on your colleagues and other interlocutors.

By role modelling such behaviour in the safe environment of the training room, you will become aware of your personal behaviour patterns and what changes you can make to have a more positive influence and reinforce the strong messages you wish to embed.

Key skills areas covered include:

- Leadership
- Negotiation
- Influencing and impact
- Persuasion

Through expert-led sessions, practical exercises, simulations and peer feedback, you'll leave with a powerful toolkit for building stronger relationships, managing difficult conversations and delivering results - whether in internal strategy meetings or high-stakes commercial negotiations.

Reviews

I extremely enjoyed the 2 days training. [Speaker] was very polite, professional and at the same time, experienced and knowledge in the subject, so I learned a lot from him and also got very inspired. I've accomplished all I was hoping for, and more. It was very useful, tailored to our needs, and a very good combination of theory and practical exercises. Everything was great.

Amazing! Webinar was very well organized and presented! Everything was functioning smoothly and even though it was online, I also felt kind of connection with the speaker and other participants. This was my first webinar at Falconbury and for sure I will look into more of these in the future!
