Course overview

Did you know that the most common type of stress is work-related stress? 914,000 workers suffered from work-related stress, depression or anxiety (new or long-standing) in a 2021/22 Labour Force Survey (LFS), with 17 million working days being lost due to this.

People taking sick days because of work-related stress or burnout is costing the UK economy £28.3 billion a year, according to new research which highlights the financial toll of poor mental wellbeing (NICE).

Compassionate leaders provide clear goals and good team leadership within a psychologically safe environment, leading to lower levels of stress. In organisations where there is an absence of compassionate leadership, staff report high levels of work overload, less influence over decision-making and poorer outcomes. Compassionate leadership increases staff engagement and satisfaction, as well as improved financial performance.

This FREE lunchtime programme will discuss:

- What compassionate leadership is and how this differs from other forms of leadership
- The direct link between compassionate leadership and successful, sustainable organisational growth
- The key components of compassionate leadership and how this can be achieved in practice

Benefits of attending

- Learn what compassionate leadership is
- Explore how compassionate leadership differ from other forms of leadership
- See how compassionate leadership results in high-quality productivity and improved financial performance
- Discuss the direct link between compassionate leadership and successful, sustainable organisational growth
- Understand the facilitation of compassionate leadership approaches that will enable crucial conversations about inclusion, addressing inequities and discrimination in the workplace
- Support teams to have clear goals and good team leadership, which will dramatically lower levels of stress
- Establish rigorous performance management of individuals, teams, organisations and systems through authentic compassionate leadership
- Hear examples of compassionate leadership in practice
