Overview

Well-being is more than the absence of illness – it's the experience of health, happiness, and prosperity. It includes good mental health, life satisfaction, a sense of meaning, and the ability to manage stress effectively. This free lunchtime session explores the many dimensions of well-being, from physical, emotional, and cognitive reactions to stress, to the factors that enhance personal wellness and resilience.

Participants will gain practical insights and techniques for reducing stress, improving balance, and fostering long-term mental and emotional well-being.

Key topics in this exciting webinar include:

- Defining well-being and what it means in practice
- Recognising physical, emotional, and cognitive reactions
- Understanding the factors that increase well-being
- Techniques to reduce stress and improve resilience
- Practical steps for improving mental health and wellness

Benefits of attending

- Gain a clear definition of well-being and why it matters
- Recognise the signs of stress and its impact on body and mind
- Understand how external and internal causes affect personal wellness
- Learn strategies to reduce stress and build resilience
- Explore ways to enhance well-being across all areas of life
- Access practical tools for improving mental health and sustaining happiness

Who should attend?

- Professionals experiencing workplace stress or fatigue
- Managers, HR teams, and leaders responsible for employee wellbeing
- Anyone noticing symptoms of exhaustion, negativity, or reduced performance
- Individuals juggling high personal and professional demands.
- Anyone else seeking practical tools to prevent and manage burnout

Presenter

Claire Mould

With over thirty years' experience of working in and with the public, corporate, and charitable sectors, Claire has expertise in providing strategic, analytical, emotionally intelligent solutions that engender, inform, facilitate and embed growth through compassionate leadership.

Extending from post-doctoral studies on neurology, specifically the link between emotional intelligence and cognitive intelligence, Claire has written, presented, and worked at a national, European, and international level and has published several research papers and books.

In her previous time as a CEO of various charities, she has practical experience in the art of compassionate leadership and has developed a real passion for helping individuals and organisations to optimise their growth potential.

In addition to her work as a facilitator, delivering sessions and presenting, Claire also works as an independent consultant providing emotionally intelligent strategic solutions, embedding compassionate leadership and maximising growth.

In her spare time, Claire runs for mental health and wellbeing, including running marathons and ultra marathons.
